

News

ASU is one university in many places with many choices. ASU's Polytechnic campus offers an applied approach to professional and technological programs that meet business and societal needs.

Read More News ▶

ASU students hold 'Take Back the Night' rally, march

Tuesday, March 18, 2008

MESA, Ariz. — Students at Arizona State University's Polytechnic campus have organized their second annual Take Back the Night rally and march to address issues of sexual violence.

The rally and march will be held at ASU's Polytechnic campus Student Union South Patio at 6 p.m., April 3. This free, public event will include a display of The Clothesline Project and the Bravery Project, speakers, a march, and will close with an empowering and unifying vigil and speak-out.

For information, call (480) 727-1700. For more information about Take Back the Night, visit www.takebackthenight.org.

ASU's Polytechnic campus is located at Power and Williams Field roads in Mesa.

MEDIA CONTACT(S): Christine Lambrakis, 480/727-1173, 602/316-5616, lambrakis@asu.edu

ASU's Polytechnic campus, located in southeast Mesa, offers degree programs, unparalleled by other Arizona state universities, through the Morrison School of Management and Agribusiness, School of Applied Arts & Sciences, College of Technology and Innovation, and School of Educational Innovation and Teacher Preparation. Visit us online at <http://www.poly.asu.edu>.